

The skill of the chef | Funny Bedtime Story For Adults

In one house there was a cook named Joseph. One day the landlord handed his cook two mangoes and said, “Today a friend of mine is coming to our house.

So peel the skin of these mangoes and cut it into chunky pieces. Bring these fruits to both of us when he comes!”. He left and went to look after his work.

The cook also peeled the mangoes. Then he took a piece and tasted it to see how the fruit looked.

The cook ate everything as the mango was so tasty, "as if the cat had tasted it". At that time a friend of the boss also came home.

After a while, the landlord came to the cook and said, “What! Did you cut the fruit?”. When asked, the cook said, "Our knife is blunt so that not even the skin can be peeled!" He showed a knife to his boss.

Immediately the boss took the knife from the cook and began to sharpen it well on a stone. Then the cook thought this was the time and went to his boss' friend and said, "Sir! I do not know who you are.

You look sinful!. Why did you come here?. My boss is very angry at you.
He has called you to cut both of your ears!."

The cook picked the friend up and went to look through the doorway and asked him to look at his boss, sharpening the knife to cut his ears.

The friend who saw the scene ran away screaming that, "I have to escape" believing what the cook had said was true.

Immediately the cook went to his boss and said "Boss! Your friend picked up two mangoes and started to run!".

The boss, who was holding the knife, came to the door without even putting the knife down, shouted at his friend, and said, "Give me atleast one!" He ran after him shouting.

The friend who heard it flew faster than before, wondering if he was asking one of his ears. The boss also chased his friend as far as he could and came home unable to catch him.

The chef was delighted to think of his skill.