

Monkey And Hat | free bedtime stories

A hat dealer was doing the hat business. All of his hats were sold all over town.

One day he went from one village to another. By travelling, he became very tired and weak. High sun, too hot, too hungry, so he decided to rest for some time.

So he drank his food and water under a tree on the way and hid the hat bag next to him and lay down peacefully.

As soon as he wakes up after a while he sees that his bag is empty. Someone has stolen all his hats.

Immediately the man searches his hat all over the place. Then he hears a noise above the tree. When he looked up, a lot of monkeys were lying on the tree.

Each monkey was wearing a hat. "Oh, this is what happened when I slept," thought the hat dealer, "return my hats to me." He asked the monkeys.

The monkeys refused to return the hats. To which the hat dealer looked at the monkeys and made a very cowardly noise. The monkeys too made a noise in return.

Immediately he clapped his hands, and the monkeys turned and clapped their hands. He threw a stone at which the monkeys lifted the fruit from the tree.

He threatened to beat the monkeys. The monkeys looked at the merchant and smiled. He was so confused. So it is unknown to him what to do with those monkeys.

When he thought about it he took the hat on his head with one hand and scratched his head with the other hand. Immediately the monkeys did the same.

The hat dealer who saw it had an idea. He threw down his hat. The monkeys similarly threw down their hats. Then the merchant took all the hats and put them in his bag and ran away happily without looking back at the place.

The merchant escaped from the monkeys with his idea.